Introduction

• The UK social care sector is under increased pressure to combat workforce shortages

• With recruitment of professionals impacted by Brexit, the COVID-19 pandemic and the cost-of-living crisis, social care needs innovations to attract, recruit and retain staff

Objectives

• To work in partnership with stakeholders to explore the evidence for innovations to attract, recruit and retain social workers and social care workers, and to understand factors influencing turnover within the UK context
Methods

• This rapid review was conducted by the Wales COVID-19 Evidence Centre

• The question was submitted by Social Care Wales and at an initial stakeholder meeting they provided a strategic overview of the social care situation in Wales outlining the need for the review

• A search of available UK literature (including grey literature) from 2017-2022 was conducted within one week – rapid evidence synthesis

• At the second stakeholder meeting the research team presented findings from the rapid evidence synthesis to determine the focus of the rapid review

Conclusion

• The Social Care Wales team used the rapid review to inform its programme of work for developing the social care workforce across Wales

• Impact was achieved through the inclusion of the review in the monthly summary of advice to the Technical Advisory Cell of Welsh Government

• Findings were presented to the Directors of Social Services, workforce leads, managers and staff within Wales through the Association of Directors of Social Services

• Informed the Health and Social Care Committee, House of Commons enquiry ‘Workforce: recruitment, training and retention in health and social care’
